

George Brian Sisak

January 7, 1942 - June 5, 2026

George Brian Sisak, 84, passed away peacefully on June 5, 2026, at Hospice Austin's Christopher House in Austin, Texas, following a stroke and complications from congestive heart failure.

Born on January 7, 1942, in Graceton, Pennsylvania, Brian was the son of George Sisak and Roselia Mae Wilson. He grew up in Jamestown, New York, where he graduated from Jamestown High School before pursuing his education at Mount Union College in Ohio, where he earned a Bachelor of Arts degree.

Brian built a career in communications and public relations spanning more than three decades. He began in journalism, serving as a state news editor for the Kent-Ravenna Record-Courier, before moving into corporate communications with Ohio Power Company, where he held public relations responsibilities and served as assistant editor of the Ohio Power Review. He went on to work in public relations and marketing at Goodyear and Borax, and later ran his own display marketing company.

A man of deep faith, Brian was an active member of the Episcopal Church throughout his life, including St. Paul's in Canton and New Life in Uniontown, Ohio.

Brian is survived by his daughter, Allison Martin of Austin, Texas; one granddaughter, Erica Martin of Lexington, Kentucky; and two brothers, Brad Sisak of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio and Dud Sisak of Chepachet, Rhode Island.
